Carrie Underwood New Song Southbound

Carrie Underwood wrote this easy, summer-themed party song with her producer David Garcia and collaborator Josh Miller. You will find the country star looking to get a little south, unscrewed, Tennessee honey kinda buzz with the help of a ponto boat and lots of daisies. The song was one of the last Underwood recorded for her album Cry Pretty. The singer recalled in press materials that she suggested the title Southbound thinking they could do something fun with it. But he soon found it difficult to write and sing a party boat song to drink. One example was a couple of lines about a girl named Katie who was enjoying a little too much. Katie is the one who should take her slow because she's dancin' in the dock and it's only two o'clock. Underwood said it took them a long time to get to the right Katie lyrics. Garcia, Miller and she wanted to make Katie have a little too much fun, but all the lines they came out with seemed to make her find it so sad. We still had to make Katie have some respect, but I wanted to get her out of there that some people were having too much fun, she explained. Underwood debuted the song during the 2019 ACM Awards in Las Vegas, with Cry Pretty Tour 360 openers Maddie & Tae and Runaway June joining her on stage. The country star's performance was a huge production that incorporated an outdoor pool that began, deejay, dancers, extras, as well as the cameos of her touring companions. The video was directed by Jeff Venable, who has also been fronting clips of Brad Paisley (Country Nation), Kelsea Ballerini (Legends), Morgan Evans (Kiss Somebody) and many more. Underwood Cry Pretty Tour 360 Maddie & Tae and Runaway June, as well as her husband Mike Fisher, also appear in the visual, which includes behind the scenes of the tour and images of a day off at the lake. Southbound was Carrie Underwood's idea. The country star explained to The Boot that she felt many Cry Pretty songs were more serious, heavy or slower cuts. She felt they needed to add something fresh that was lighter and funnier. Carrie Underwood's Southbound is a song from the album Cry Pretty and reached the Billboard Top Country Songs. Southbound's official music video premiered on YouTube on Saturday, June 8, 2019. Listen to Carrie Underwood's song below. Southbound Carrie Underwood's lyrics were written by Carrie Underwood, David Garcia and Josh Miller. Carrie Underwood Female 2019 Carrie Underwood's Southbound lyrics make for a summer anthem that is pop-country gold. The country superstar debuted the song live at the 2019 ACM Awards with a party performance at the summer pool that included an appearance by her Cry Pretty 360 tour mates Maddie & Tae and Runaway June. Underwood this was the last song he wrote for his album Cry Pretty – the last piece of the puzzle. I knew I needed something that was a bit more fun, he tells the Tennessean, Because I felt we had a lot of serious moments and a lot of excitement that was skewing more not sad, but just a little more serious. I wanted this levity! Underwood doesn't like going into the studio with an agenda, but he had a plan when he cut Southbound. The party atmosphere provided by the song's atmosphere is new to her, but it's set to become the song of summer 2019 - a carefree hit fans and no fans will get stuck in the water while watching something cold. Carrie Underwood's best live vocals ever! Carrie Underwood's Southbound letters: We have a ponto boat with a Yamaha / People dressed as if they were in Panama / Small town, spring break / Every weekend around this place / And there are a lot of guys trying to catch their eyes / Of all the beautiful girls who are walking / And these redneck daisies are two for one in this old marina. So cheap lines and gas stations / Come here everywhere. Heart: To get a little south, get rid, Tennessee Honey kinda buzz / Then the south sounds loud, dripping summer from us / From the riverbank to the party cove / While floating, let's rock the boat / And everything is looking up when we go down, yes / And get a little south, heading south / Get a little south, heading south. Bo got a ticket in an un woken up area / But Katie is the one who should take her slowly / Because she's dancin' in the dock and it's only two o'clock / yes, the fish isn't bitten because the party is going because the old ones are thinking 'bout goin' at home / But these redneck daisies are two for one in this old marina, yes. I have the rope swing, swingin' like a chandelier / Some sky in the water here / I don't need much, just a couple of beers and you and I / Gotta love this time of year / Get in a southerly direction, heading south. Read on to learn more about the song writing session, as shared by Underwood, Garcia and Miller at a press event in Nashville. David Garcia: It was Carrie's idea. Carrie Underwood: I was looking for this extra piece for the missing puzzle and coming in, being like, I know we need something lighter and fun. A lot of [Cry Pretty's songs] were more serious songs, more weighted songs or slower songs, and we just needed that cool piece. It's always hard when you come in with preconceived ideas of how [a writing session] should go because then... you could all be fired and you could have written, like, the greatest sad song ever. If you come in [and] you're like, I really need something uptempo and fun, it couldn't be the best thing for the day. I remember being very loose. I feel like she was knocked down: She brought the idea. Garcia did what he always does and had a great atmosphere -- that feels, the flesh of this track -- kind of prepared. I think we had fun, wrote something we all enjoy.
